Step 6: File Your Weekly Payment Request and Keep Up the Job Search. Once you start receiving unemployment benefits, you have to file weekly or biweekly (varies by state) payment requests online to be paid - no exceptions. Even worse, months later, many jobless people were still desperately trying to cut through all the red tape and the massive volume of people to file their own unemployment claims. In some cases, people who were fired, suspended or asked to take a leave of absence don't qualify for unemployment. If you've been checking out our print products, you might have noticed these symbols. These are free downloadable blank templates designed to help make online printing that little bit easier. Moreover, if you willingly quit your job, are an independent contractor or otherwise self-employed, or can't go back to work for health or other reasons, you might not qualify. Finally, keep in mind that unemployment benefits are taxable, so it's generally wise to choose to have taxes withheld from each payment when you first open your claim. Step 5: Collect Your Unemployment Benefits. Most claims are processed within two to three calendar weeks or 10 business days, although delays could occur during times of high claim volumes. You'll be required to answer some questions about any work you completed each week as well as any other income you received. Photo Courtesy: svetkik/E+/Getty Images Finally, it's important to keep in mind that unemployment benefits are usually contingent upon a recipient doing their part to actively look for a new job. Without a doubt, the ongoing pandemic throws a bit of a wrench into the process of actively seeking work, so that component may vary from state to state and could change at any time. The final step for using our free blank templates is to upload your print-ready file! For smaller files and less complex products, you'll be able to do this online.
